TOURIST PROPOSALS

Domingo de Piñata, Carnaval de Cebreros, Ávila (cedida agencia Ical)

CARNAVAL OF CEBREROS, ÁVILA

The Carnival of Cebreros brings together friends and family members who, in addition to the usual parades, take part in the procession of floats and troupes on the two Sundays of the Carnival. This grand procession is the highlight of the festival. The floats are authentic masterpieces crafted from various materials and have evolved over the years to include electronics. This innovation has made it possible to integrate movement into some of the floats, transforming them into a captivating spectacle. On the Carnival afternoons of Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday, the Corro or Rondón dance, a traditional Cebreros dance, takes centre stage. To the lively accompaniment of a band singing the popular jota, participants form a circle, or rondón, in pairs around the square, standing in front of each other. The jota cebrerense must be danced non-stop for several hours. With its infectious rhythm, it invites everyone to join in the rRondón dance, a unique tradition that has been maintained for many years. The Carnival of Cebreros has the prestigious distinction of being declared a Festival of National Tourist Interest in Spain.

FESTIVAL OF THE TITOS DE SAN ANTÓN, BURGOS

In 2024, the popular district of Gamonal in Burgos will be the first to declare the Festival of the Titos de San Antón as a Festival of Tourist Interest in Castilla y León. Once the Christmas festivities are over, the festival of San Antón takes place every year on the 17th of January, when around 20,000 portions of Titos (beans) are served to the public. The festivities are organised by the brothers of the Cofradía de San Antón (Brotherhood of San Antón), an institution that dates back to 1502. After Mass in the Santa María la Real y Antigua de Gamonal parish church, the priest blesses the animals and sets the stage for the most important event of the day: the distribution of the Titos. These Titos are prepared in advance by members of the Cofradía de San Antón, at the brotherhood's headquarters located opposite the church, and are a unique highlight. Titos, also known as Muelas, are humble legumes used mainly for animal consumption, and their cultivation is currently in decline. This convergence of traditions and the rarity of Titos make the festival a compelling reason to visit the capital of Burgos, especially in the cold month of January.

EL CAMINO OLVIDADO (THE FORGOTTEN WAY), LEÓN

O the many routes to Santiago, there are as many as there are pilgrims, and perhaps one of the least known is "The Forgotten Way," one of the earliest Jacobean routes of great beauty. It crosses the mountains and offers scenic landscapes, as well as cultural and social wealth. Throughout the year there are fairs, pilgrimages, festivals, and chestnut roasts. At the same time, it is one of the most peaceful places to enjoy the silence. Starting in Bilbao, it crosses parts of the provinces of Vizcaya, Cantabria, Burgos and, in the province of Palencia, Cervera de Pisuerga. A little further on, past Guardo, it enters the province of León, crossing mountains and valleys, including four Biosphere Reserves (out of the seven in the province). It reaches Villafranca del Bierzo, where it joins the French Way.

La Laguna de la Nava, Fuentes de Nava, Palencia (cedida agencia Ical)

ENJOYING THE BIRDS, LA LAGUNA DE LA NAVA, PALENCIA

The Laguna de la Nava, popularly known as the "Sea of Campos," currently covers an area of approximately 400 hectares. In the southwest of the province, in the Tierra de Campos region and near the town of Fuentes de Nava, you'll find the Casa del Parque - a must-see destination to discover the history of this significant wetland, one of the most important on the peninsula. It is part of the La Nava-Campos Norte Bird Sanctuary (ZEPA), a specially designated area for the protection of birds. It is home to important populations of waterfowl, with an inventory that currently lists 222 bird species, or 41% of all the species found in Spain. This richness has earned it the title of "Wetland of International Importance" (RAMSAR). Some birds, such as the Common Goose, have annual concentrations of between 10,000 and 12,000 individuals, especially during the winter and the spring and autumn migrations. It is recommended to bring binoculars, although they are available for hire on the guided tours organised from the Casa del Parque. +34 979 139 801 / 695 876 777.

THE CHARRO COSTUME, SALAMANCA

The Charro costume of Salamanca is one of the most exquisite regional costumes in all of Spain, renowned for the quality of its fabrics and the richness of its embroidery. Its delicate gold filigree necklaces and adornments, along with the headdress of braided buns adorned with hairpins, are reminiscent of those worn by the famous Lady of Elche. It has different regional variations, such as the mountain costume, the plains costume, the Ribera costume, the Rebollar costume, and the Candelario costume. With the visit of Alfonso XIII and Victoria Eugenia to Salamanca in 1922, it became firmly established as the "regional costume of Salamanca". The Queen was captivated by the attire of the Salamancan ladies who came to welcome her, prompting the municipality to present their Majesties with Charro costumes. These were later donated to the Museum of Spanish Folk Art in 1934 and are now part of the museum's costume collection. In the municipality of La Alberca, you can visit a museum dedicated to the traje de vistas, the spectacular mountain version of the Charro costume.

THE MOUNTAIN KNOWN AS "LA MUJER MUERTA" (THE DEAD WOMAN), SEGOVIA

Strolling through the city of Segovia, there is a point in our beloved Calle Real, at the height of the Casa de los Picos, where every traveller tends to stop and take in the breathtaking views offered by this unique space. Across the road is the church of San Millán, with the Sierra de Guadarrama as its scenic backdrop. From here you can see the mountain known as "La Mujer Muerta" in the Sierra de Guadarrama, with its contours resembling the silhouette of a reclining woman. According to legend, a chief of the "arévacos" tribe, located on the hill of El Alcázar, had twin sons named Ambón and Caro. Upon the death of the chief, the two brothers vied for leadership of the tribe. Their mother, Estena, feared the conflict between them and offered her life in exchange for her sons' survival. When the brothers were ready to fight, even though it was summer, a blizzard followed by a huge snowfall prevented them from doing so. After the storm, the brothers discovered that where there had been a plain, there was now a mountain. Legend has it that the two small clouds that approached the mountain and have remained there ever since are the children of Estena.

MONASTERY OF SANTA MARÍA DE HUERTA, SORIA

In the quaint village of Santa María de Huerta, the remarkable structure of the monastery of the same name stands out. Its construction began in 1162 under the supervision of the master of the Cathedral of Sigüenza. Progress was rapid, facilitated by royal patronage and generous donations. Martín de Finojosa became the first abbot appointed in Huerta, and his mission was to strengthen the community and essentially reconstruct the monastery from the ground up. The Monastery of Santa María de Huerta welcomes tourists on the ground floor, encompassing the artistic and oldest section. The tour unfolds through three primary areas: the Church, two cloisters, and the monastery's chambers. Four styles - Romanesque, Gothic, Plateresque, and Herrerian - converge into a single style characterised by austerity: the Cistercian style. Notable spaces include the 13th-century Gothic Cloister and Refectory. Adjacent to the Refectory stands the 13th-century Gothic kitchen, modelled on Spanish Cistercian kitchens. Upon departure, visitors return to the 17th-century Herrerian Cloister.

Palacio Sta Cruz, Valladolid

VALLADOLID, CITY OF PALACES

Valladolid is as a notable symbol in palatial architecture, as historical records reveal a city that once proudly boasted some 400 palaces, reflecting its influence during the 15th and 16th centuries. Alongside convents, these structures played a pivotal role in shaping the city's Renaissance urban landscape. Over time, many of these palaces disappeared, leaving only remnants such as façades, entrances, courtyards, and staircases. Outstanding examples are the Palace of Francisco de los Cobos, originally a royal residence, which became the Royal Palace under Felipe III in the 17th century; the mansion of Fabio Nelli, now the Valladolid Museum, with an exquisite courtyard with an Italian touch; the residence of the Marqués de Villena, now part of the National Sculpture Museum, exhibiting a splendid Neapolitan nativity scene; the Palace of Los Vivero, where the Catholic Monarchs celebrated their nuptials and now functions as the Provincial Historical Archive. The list goes on with the Palace of Licenciado Butrón, the Palace of Pimentel, the Palace of the Counts of Benavente, and the Palace of the Marquises of Valverde. Exploring these locations offers a deep immersion into the city's history and heritage.

BENITO PELLITERO AND THE MUTINY OF THE TROUT, ZAMORA

A pellitero (leather worker) called Benito was the protagonist of one of the most important events in the history of Zamora, "El Motín de la Trucha" (The Mutiny of the Trout). In the year 1158, there was an uproar in the Zamora market when a cobbler wanted to buy a trout just as a nobleman's pantryman wanted to take precedence, claiming the knights' privilege to buy various foods. A riot broke out with supporters on both sides. The knight, Gómez Álvarez de Vizcaya, swiftly imprisoned the cobbler and his allies, condemning what he perceived as the commoners' insolence. Gómez Álvarez de Vizcaya then summoned the city's knights to discuss the matter at the Church of Santa María la Nueva. The heightened emotions of the people led to the temple being set ablaze. Benito el Pellitero, who was in charge of the crowd, saw to it that messengers were sent to Portugal to ask King Fernando II for forgiveness so that they could return to their homes. Despite the nobles' desire for retribution, the king decided to grant a pardon on the condition that the Church of Santa María be rebuilt and that he receive absolution from Pope Alexander III. Feeling aggrieved, the nobles journeyed to the Kingdom of Castile and tried to disrupt the harmonious relations between King Fernando de León and his brother Sancho III of Castile.
